Sixtieth Contact

Billy:

We should first of all clear up some things, before we concern ourselves with new questions. Namely it is the case that the human beings of Earth are still unknowing in many things, whereby misunderstandings arise. So this happened, for example, through two questions from me in relation to the American government and the American Pentagon, with respect to materials and dead bodies of extraterrestrial origin. In regard to the government you have confirmed that it has some things of extraterrestrial origin in its possession, whilst you answered this with no in regard to the Pentagon. Well, it was not clear why for one thing you say yes and another no.

Semjase:

1. Your question is very illogical.

Billy:

And you do not seem to understand: between us the questions are dealt with logically, however for the Earth-humans this is not always comprehensible, because they simply do not know certain things. So to them it is largely also unknown that the American government simply is a national government, whilst the American Pentagon embodies the ministry of defence and war. Therefore, concerning this matter, you should give an explanation.

Semjase:

2. I understand.
3. – America is being governed unofficially by various forms of government.

4. On the one hand the presidential government governs there, on the other hand, however, also the Pentagon as well as the military government and also the CIA, and so forth.
5. Officially all really belong together, however in truth all three forms, in their innermost, work only for themselves alone, so in a manner of speaking they make up their own form of government.
6. If therefore your questions are related to the official government on the one hand and the Pentagon on the other hand, then accordingly I have to give you also two different answers in relation to this, namely that one of these governments is in possession of certain materials, and so forth, of extraterrestrial origin, whilst it is not known to us that the Pentagon is supposedly in possession of a few dead bodies of extraterrestrial intelligences.
7. The possibility may indeed well exist, however, we have no knowledge about whether it is actually so.
8. In the meantime, we have made an effort to clarify this question, however, we were not able to reach clear results.

Billy:

I think that this explanation may be sufficient. Now, however, I just would like to sound you out thoroughly in regard to Atlantis and Mu. You have promised me already more than a year ago, that you would give me enough information about it. In the meantime, concerning this question, you have probably made a few remarks, but you have not yet given exhaustive information and explanations.

Semjase:

9. Certainly, I explained to you at that time that I would inform you when the time is ripe for it.

Billy:

I know that, but is it not then yet?

Semjase:

10. The time has arrived, to speak about it.

Billy:

It pleases me; then go for it. I am all ears.

Semjase:

11. As I already explained at an earlier point in time, Atlantis and Mu destroyed one another.
12. However, this was a peculiar case and I have to begin to recount from a very early time.
13. About 150,000 Earth-years ago, after a very long time of wars and of uprisings, our home planets finally found peace and freedom.
14. Many millennia after the creation of calmness, peace and freedom however, a scientist called PELEGON made himself the leader of a group consisting of about 70,000 human beings, and with their help he appropriated numerous large space ships and fled.
15. As a great scientist it was an easy thing for him to force the 70,000 strong group under his control and to bring them to the Earth in a frantic escape through space and time.
16. On board of his stolen space ships were close to two hundred very good scientists of the most varied fields of knowledge.
17. From them, and also from the whole group, Pelegon was unanimously accepted as god, thus as the king of wisdom and leader.
18. During the following millennia their descendants lived on the Earth and built up a high culture.
19. They built many and large cities and inhabited all continents of the Earth.
20. Their flourishing lasted close to 10,000 years.
21. During this time all went well and everything found a very high level of development.

22. However, before the 10,000 years were completed, dissatisfaction erupted again through the lust for might of some that were greedy for might, which led to deadly wars that made the entire Earth tremble with wild war cries.
23. An Earth world war took place to the extent as has never happened before and has not been brought to Earth since.
24. Everything, but really completely everything that the ones who had come from space had built up, was destroyed and annihilated and only a few thousand human beings of these extraterrestrials survived the tremendous catastrophe.
25. These, however, fled with good and far-reaching space ships out into space and settled on foreign worlds.
26. Only a very small remnant remained on the destroyed Earth and degenerated completely, whereby they lived completely separately from the small group of Earth-born humans of that time.
27. When after around 7,000 years the distant descendants of the ones that fled came back to Earth, they therefore found only extremely wild and degenerated individuals of their forefathers, who lived, as said before, far away from the Earth-humans.
28. The return of the descendants of the former fugitives happened again under the leadership of a god, under whose rule Mu as well as Greater Atlantis and Lesser Atlantis were built.
29. At that time Greater Atlantis and Mu were the two most gigantic cities which had ever been built on the Earth, and for the sake of peace they were built on two different continents.
30. Again a high culture was built up and everything began to blossom.
31. During a few millennia complete unity and peace prevailed, before some scientists, in their greed for might, ausarteten [got very badly out of control of the good human] nature again, and with all means available to them, tried to seize dominion.
32. The peoples however, with the distant memory of the wars of their forefathers, rose up against the might-craving scientists, so the scientists had to flee.
33. Through some allies that were well disposed towards them, they were able to appropriate several space-ships and fled into outer space.
34. Calculated in Earth years this was a little more than 150,000 years ago.
35. During the following tens of thousands of years, these evil-minded refugees lived in a different space and time configuration to our Pleiades, in a neighbouring solar system, fathered many descendants and developed a high technology, which offered them tremendous possibilities.
36. This technology, however, they furthered only in hatred and revenge, because they thereby wanted to bring the Earth under their Gewalt [using all available coercive means of physical, psychological, mental and consciousness powers, abilities and skills to perform and exercise monstrous deeds and actions].
37. Through their government, the hatred and pathological craving for revenge of the descendants, was constantly stirred up and driven so far that, in their own ranks, a certain order could be maintained only with very great effort and dreadful punishments.
38. Thus a people of malicious and bestial nature came into being.
39. It was also their hatred through which the average life expectancy of these hate-filled human beings was driven up by means of research, gene manipulation and through mutations, and so forth, so that in the end it amounted to several thousands of years.
40. Each individual human being of this people was taught in the art of war and in the most outrageous intrigues.
41. After two thousand years these hateful people had progressed so far that an attack on the Earth could be considered.
42. Thus they got on their way, climbed on board of their large space ships and came to the Earth.
43. This was around 103,000 Earth years ago.
44. Their leader was the jschwjsch Arus (JHWH) [King of Wisdom], the barbarian; and scientist of an extremely bestial disposition and of coercive might.

45. For his help he had appointed many scientists of most varied disciplines as deputies and sub-leaders, 200 in number.
46. Suddenly and predatorily they pounced on the Earth and stole new land for themselves, thus they were then able to colonise the north of America.
47. It is the present day Florida, which came to rest in the present day south only due to a shift of the Earth.
48. From there they won a great might over the Earth for themselves, whereby they continuously fought Atlantis and Mu.
49. Constantly they pushed forward to Greater Atlantis and Mu, in order to bring these cities into their possession through acts of war.
50. Thus for many further millennia, world-wide wars blazed, before evil elements of the hate-filled human beings were able to infiltrate into the ruling elite of Atlantis and Mu, who secretly stirred up hatred and Gewalt, until Greater Atlantis and Mu were completely destroyed through the intrigues, whereby few survivors went into servitude, while great scientists were able to flee with their space ships and returned to the former home-worlds of our seven-stars, being our Pleiades, which were settled by the earliest forefathers when they left their original home worlds in another space-time configuration in the Vega-Lyra-region.
51. However, the form in which Greater Atlantis and Mu were destroyed was of such intrigues and full of horror that, in the history of the human beings of the Earth, it will probably never be paralleled:
52. The intriguers stirred up malicious machinations between the Atlantians and the citizens of Mu, which led to mutual actions of war.
53. Between both arose malicious hatred and the will to destroy.
54. Mu, which was in the Gobi Desert, feuded with Greater Atlantis, which was built in the great island kingdom between present day Africa and America, before it sank in the Atlantic due to the greatest earthly war-catastrophe of all past and probably also future times, leaving behind only a few small islands, which today you call the Azores.
55. At their time, the war powers of Mu and Atlantis were of horrendous might and size and equipped with the highest technological achievements.
56. So, Greater Atlantis alone had at its disposal an army of 4.83 million (4,830,000) men, which was equipped with small-combat-beamships.
57. Furthermore, the government of Atlantis commanded a giant fleet of 123,000 units of single-person-destroyers, miniature beam ships for close Earth combat.
58. In addition, there existed another 16,431 eliminator units, miniature beam ships, which, through the effects of heat, were able to totally eliminate all material within fractions of a second.
59. Finally, they were equipped also with 24,230 overkill-beamers, each of which required 10 people to operate and were installed in midrange-beamships.
60. To this tremendous might Mu was inferior, which however did not make it less dangerous for the Greater Atlantians, because the Mu scientists had likewise developed very dangerous weapons, which in many ways were even more dangerous and more destructive than everything of the Atlantians altogether.
61. The scientists of Mu had in fact discovered powers, which made it possible for them to convert entire small planets into all-destroying space bombs, by pulling them out of their orbit of millions of years and with extreme precision steering them onto a carefully determined target of another planet and letting them crash down with devastating force and explode above the target, and it was exactly this frightful weapon they used when Greater Atlantis commenced the full-scale attack against Mu.
62. The best and the most suitable scientists of Mu were charged with finding a suitable planetoid which could be used as a deadly and annihilating missile against Atlantis.
63. Thus they flew with their ships out into space and found in the asteroid belt, outside of the Mars orbit, an object suitable for their purpose.
64. It was a planetoid of several kilometres in diameter, but we are no longer able to analyse its exact size.

65. By means of atomic and electro-energetic energies it was thrown out of its orbit and brought onto course towards Earth.
66. After that the planetoid's own rotation was slowed down and brought to a standstill, whereupon on the side turned away from the Earth, a drive unit of gigantic size was installed for the purpose of a tremendous acceleration of the small planet, which was supposed to be directed to its destination with breakneck speed.
67. Only less than half a day before the full-scale attack of Atlantis against Mu, the deadly space bomb was completed, a death-messenger of human insanity and of tremendous consequence.
68. When Atlantis undertook the attack, the producers of the death missile were informed within a few seconds, by means of hyperwave-impulses, about the oncoming events and were charged with allowing the death missile to take off.
69. A few seconds after receiving the command, on the side of the planetoid facing away from the Earth, a thousand suns appeared to race into the dark space and with gigantic force the monster started moving.
70. Very quickly the speed of the messenger of death increased, steered by scientists controlling the monster, who were sitting on the planetoid completing their task and thereby were doomed to die.
71. In the meantime, on the Earth the Atlantians eliminated the city of Mu and levelled it.
72. Whoever had not fled into the satellite cities thousands of metres deep underground or into space, perished in the totally eliminating rays of the Atlantians and nothing bore witness anymore to their former existence.
73. The victorious Atlantians however returned to their gigantic island kingdom and celebrated their victory achieved over Mu in a true delirium of joy.
74. However, their joy did not last long because they had barely begun their festivities when messages came thick and fast in regard to the danger rushing towards them through space.
75. Only a few high government officials and scientists were still able to clear out and flee with their spaceships into space before the catastrophe was unleashed over Atlantis and made it sink into the sea.
76. The ones left behind and doomed to die saw the disaster racing towards them, high in the sky and far in the northwest above the sea and the far continent.
77. As if out of nothing a dark celestial body suddenly appeared, which advanced at frantic speed with its far side blasting off blinding light.
78. The colossus came rushing in quite low and in a few seconds turned into a giant.
79. First only visible like a small shooting star, in a few seconds it turned to a gigantic size with a fiery tail.
80. Fascinated and transfixed, dilated pupils from fright, the human beings stared ominously towards the approaching monster, which so completely silently sped towards them, then however suddenly gave out an unbearable howling sound, as it plunged into and rubbed against the first levels of the atmosphere of the Earth inducing its resistance.
81. Two seconds later the planetoid began to glow like a supernova and created a heat of more than 340,000 degrees.
82. In a split second vast areas of country burnt to smouldering ash, when the enormous heat fell down from the speeding giant.
83. Then the space bomb suddenly exploded at less than 172 kilometres altitude and transformed into many thousands of small and larger meteorites, which, like small atomic bombs, were catapulted to Earth and with devastating impact destroyed everything that got in the way and which was in the areas of impact and shock-waves.
84. Through the tremendous explosion the whole Earth was shaken and the thunder of the explosion rolled around the entire globe.
85. The planet was shaken badly and many volcanos erupted out of it.
86. Two large parts of the exploding planetoid crashed like titanic fists into the Atlantic and pierced through the hard crust of the Earth on the bottom of the ocean.

87. It was as if the world was going under, because the power of impact of the debris was greater than many hydrogen bombs such as you insanely possess today.
88. Deep in the ocean the Earth's crust was torn apart and the way opened for the boiling hot and glowing magma of the inner Earth, which now viscously poured out.
89. The seawater began to bubble and boil, vaporising masses of water which shot up into the atmosphere, up to 35,000 metres high.
90. Through all of this happening, the wild ocean was thrown up into a gigantic tsunami wave, which surged forward with frantic speed and a height of 2,300 metres, pulled along everything and simply let entire countries sink into the water, or at least destroyed whatever was in its path.
91. The island empire of Atlantis however sank within a few minutes in the raging waters of the Atlantic, without even leaving one single surviving life-form behind.
92. The capital city, which was built like a beam ship, was torn into several pieces and sank with the foundation.
93. This is how the event with Atlantis and Mu unfolded about 9,500 years before today's calendar.

Billy:

Fantastic. But from where do you have this knowledge?

Semjase:

94. It was handed down to us.

Billy:

Phenomenal – but you said just a moment ago, that these events belong to the past 9,500 years before our calendar, as you say. Is this date exact?

Semjase:

95. Certainly, up to two years exactly.
96. Calculated back it is exactly 9,498 years before the start of the current calendar.
97. If you go from the year 2000 then it is exactly 11,498 years.

Billy:

I cannot believe it.

Semjase:

98. You doubt my information?

Billy:

Certainly not, but just look at this. – Here I have received a magazine article from one of our group members. In that a man named Otto Muck, a German physicist, has calculated that Atlantis must have been destroyed at exactly 19:00 hrs on the 6th of June of the year 8498 BC, and indeed precisely as you have just told it, only that he thinks that it was a purely cosmic catastrophe.

Semjase:

99. That does not surprise me.

Billy:

So, and why not? This man has after all calculated everything very precisely, up to the year exactly, only that he erred by one thousand.

Semjase:

100. Sure, that is a miscalculation, because he relied on information, which is incorrect by years.
101. Additionally, he assumes that through the Mu-Atlantis-events Noah's Flood was triggered, which is not true.

Billy:

That is known to me. However, I really thought that you would be surprised about the calculation and explanation, which in my opinion is very remarkable.

Semjase:

102. Why should I?

103. The explanations of this Earth-human Muck are very well known to us, also the fact that he, apart from the calculation of the year, is very close to the truth in certain things.

104. But he must indeed know this, because only through one of his earlier personalities were the legends about Atlantis recorded in writing for posterity for the first time 2,322 years ago.

Billy:

You are driving me crazy – you actually think that one of the earlier personalities of this Muck was the former Plato?

Semjase:

105. I do not think so; we know it very exactly.

106. Here just draw a comparison with these two pictures.

107. Here is a bust of Plato and here is the picture of Otto Muck.

108. Does anything stand out for you?

Billy:

Hmm – man, girl, that fits, both of them are almost the same faces. Consequently, Otto Muck must still today show a relationship with his former existences.

Semjase:

109. Certainly, since then it has been inherited down through one family lineage.

Billy:

That is really fantastic; if that man knew it.

Semjase:

110. Unfortunately, he is not very responsive to such things.

Billy:

Too bad.

Semjase:

111. Which you are right about.

Billy:

All right, then. But may you now answer a question concerning these minor planets or planetoids, namely what is the 'Adonis group' about? Mr Muck writes that the space projectile was a body of the 'Adonis Group', which I cannot imagine.

Semjase:

112. It is very easy to explain:

113. The Adonis group includes all those celestial or space bodies which are called planetoids.

Billy:

Oh, then an Adonis group member simply means planetoid? How complicated people can be.

Semjase:

114. That is unfortunately so.

Billy:

You are also right. But now another question: You once explained to me that there is no life on Mars. If I understood correctly, you meant planetary human life, did you not?

Semjase:

115. Certainly.

Billy:

Good. – So your answer at that time does not exclude that any other life in fauna or floristic form can exist or even exists there. At that time, you said explicitly that all life there did not exist, and logically you only addressed human planetary life. What do you think now, will the Americans discover lower life-forms with their probe sent to Mars?

Semjase:

116. In the coming decades and especially in the third millennium you will experience surprises in every respect, both with regard to the atmospheric composition of the planet and also with the fact that Mars has the lowest life and much more water than earthly science has assumed so far, which, incidentally, will also apply to the Earth's moon.

117. Surprises, however, also lie in the composition of the soil and, as already mentioned, in the nature of the micro-world.

118. A very small world of flora and microorganisms can be found on Mars if the geoscientific instruments of the probes are good enough to be able to record the corresponding results.

Billy:

So 'Life on Mars' could be confirmed for our science?

Semjase:

119. It is within the bounds of possibility that the analyses can confirm this if the scientific equipment is good enough, because micro-organic and primitive floral life-forms exist on Mars, even if otherwise this planet destroys all other life with its hostile nature.

Billy:

Well, then you owe an explanation at least for our group. As with the American government and the Pentagon, there are two aspects to this. I understand your logic when you say that no life exists on a planet. According to your high logic, such a statement refers only to planetary human life-forms, yes?

Semjase:

120. Sure, there is nothing else to be construed.

Billy:

That is precisely the point, because when you answer in this manner, one unfortunately always believes that all life is meant, that is to say both fauna and flora as well as microbial and human life. In future, we must therefore be a little more specific about such matters and so on.

Semjase:

121. It is very unfamiliar for me.

Billy:

Then you must make an effort for it, or there will be misunderstandings.

Semjase:

122. I understand.

123. – I will endeavour to do so.

Billy:

Okay, many thanks for that. But now another question: The next sun system seen from us belongs to the Centauri group. To my knowledge is the first Proxima-Centauri, then Alpha-Centauri and Beta-Centauri, which by us though, is being called something else, namely the BARNARD star or similar, which is at a distance of a little bit more than 6 light-years away from us. Now, are you informed about whether any humans live in those sun systems who come to Earth?

Semjase:

124. Certainly, I myself know, there, in other space-time-structures, several dear friends in all three systems, although only in the Barnard system, meaning Beta-Centauri, can it be discovered from Earth that small planets are circling around the Sun there.
125. But why do you ask?

Billy:

It is kind of a weird story – Do you perhaps know a certain Athar and Kohun?

Semjase:

126. These are two dear friends of mine from the region of Proxima-Centauri: but, from where have you got their names?
127. You seem to be informed about certain things from which I, so far up to now, have not given you any knowledge about.

Billy:

Perhaps, but nevertheless tell me: Since when have these dear Athar and the Kohun been operating on Earth – and, do they stay in contact with any humans on the Earth?

Semjase:

128. They come here often.
129. They probably maintain contact, but not however in a very extensive form.
130. They had the last important contact more than 50 years ago with a man from Germany, who also had permission to portray them very accurately.

Billy:

Well, and at the beginning of this year they were once more – physiognomically graphically portrayed. Could it possibly be something like these two here – Look, I have a drawing here.

Semjase:

131. ? ? ? ?
132. Where have you got these drawings from?
133. That is indeed Kohun and Athar.
134. How did these drawings come into your hands?

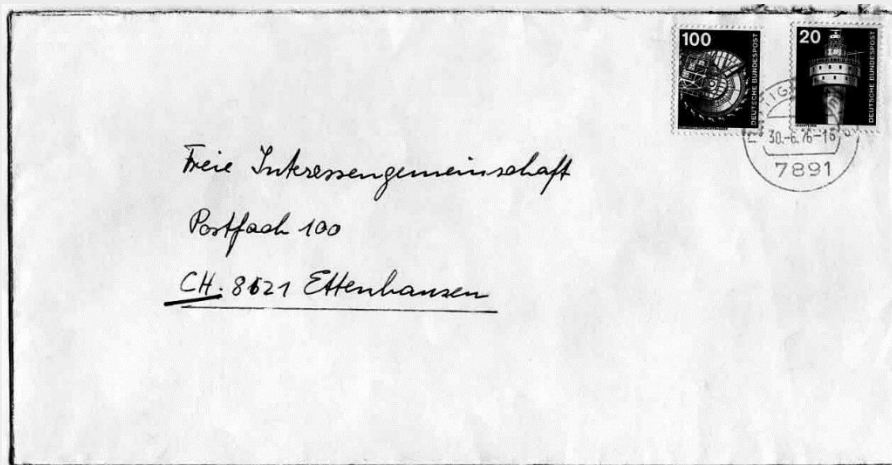

Billy:

That is something you probably wish to know, Eh? However, see now here, read this. I have just recently received this by mail.

(Semjase reads for a long time, before she again turns to me with a really surprised face.)

Semjase:

135. That is a really big surprise.

List of Addresses

Honourable ladies and gentlemen,

Enclosed we are sending you several copies of a letter of one of our friends who is travelling around the world as a globetrotter at the time. According to his request, we do not want to name any address. The reason for which you will find in the enclosed copies.

After a number of consultations with our minister, Pastor Dillmann, we have agreed to prepare the enclosed photocopies of the aforementioned letter and forward them to various addresses named to us by Pastor Dillmann, whereby we hope that the copies will be useful to you, although we ourselves doubt the statements made in the letter and are seriously concerned about our friend's state of health. Nonetheless, we would like to fulfil the request of our friend according to the advice of our esteemed Pastor Dillmann and are thus sending you the enclosed, the content of which you must clarify for yourself.

We were told that you concern yourself with such things as those mentioned in the letter so you certainly will know the meaning of all this. Along with the copies of the letter, there is also a copy of a sketch, which our friend enclosed with the letter. We can attest that he makes very good sketches with regard to physiognomies so that the drafts of both heads must be accurate. The object must correspond with reality if his information corresponds to the facts and does not stem from an attack of fever or the like which we suspect but are unable to check, because we have not heard from him since the month of February.

Perhaps it will be useful to you if we mention all of the addresses received by Pastor Dillmann, to each of which we are sending a copy of the letter. Perhaps, you among yourselves may understand more about the peculiar statements of our friend.

Hoping to have been of some service to you and to our friend, we send our kind regards.

The Letter

Trinidad, on 2nd of January 1976

Dear friends!

During my trip around the world, I have now landed in Trinidad. You will find the camp at the river MARMORE in the Llanos de Mojos in BOLIVIA. I have been here for three days, and have already seen many interesting things. I have already written many typewritten pages full with my impressions and experiences.

But yesterday, early in the morning, I had an experience which almost knocked me off my feet. At first I considered it to be hallucinations or a tropical frenzy, before I could convince myself that I was fully normal. Maybe you feel the same, when you read these lines of mine. However, you know me well and thus know that I am not a dreamer, therefore you simply have to believe me, even though this will surely be difficult for you.

Everything is so incredible and crazy, that even today I search for faults in my sanity and I still think I must be dreaming. But nevertheless everything took place exactly this way as I am now writing it to you, still under the impression from my experience of yesterday, which for me was simply huge, I cannot express it in any other way. Do not mistake me for being crazy or sick, for I am neither the one nor the other. I am just as normal as you are, and as you know I am also not attached to fantasies. Let me now tell you my experience from yesterday:

"It was just 5 o'clock in the morning, when I crawled out of the bed and got myself ready, for on that day to walk to the more distant surrounding of Trinidad. About 10 minutes after I stood up, I observed something in the morning sky which I simply could not believe. I have indeed already heard of and read about flying saucers, but I have never thought about it nor believed in it.

I always looked at such claims as fantasies. But now such a flying saucer flew very quiet and without a sound over Trinidad. It went gradually lower and finally disappeared somewhere behind the bush. I thought I must be dreaming and rubbed my eyes, because what I had just seen could simply not be true. The saucer appeared to me from my standpoint to have the form of two large half round disks placed on top of the other just like a discus looks like.

I first sat down and thought about it. Perhaps, I would be better off to return to civilisation and let myself be thoroughly examined by a doctor. But then I came to the conclusion that I ought to better first investigate the matter before deciding to take such a step. Thus, I took my compass and determined the exact direction where I believed to have seen the flying saucer go down. I then tied my bundle and marched off, continuing in the exact direction I had determined with my compass.

It was precisely east. With great effort and sweat, I fought my way further and further through the terrain and rampantly growing bush. It seemed to me as if I would never reach my goal and I soon wanted to give up and turn back. I had then already been underway for more than three hours and had still found nothing. I therefore must have suffered a hallucination, because I should have stumbled across the flying saucer long ago according to my calculation if it actually had existed.

To be sure, I continued to work my way through the hindering bush breathing heavily and soaking wet from sweat, however, was already yearning with thoughts of turning back. Even so, I did not begin on my way back, because something drove me unstoppably forward. It was as if I just passively was pulled forward, as if by a magnet, against which I simply was unable to resist.

Then, another half-hour may have gone by like this; I thought I definitely was going crazy because through the bush I suddenly saw something very large with a metallic shine. At first I stood there stiff and in disbelief, but I then overcame myself and I struggled the rest of the way through. And again, I thought I was dreaming because in a large clearing hovered a large discus of metal only about one metre (3 feet) above the ground, definitely about 14 or 15 metres [46-50'] in diameter.

What was incredible about it was that no noise and no other sound could be heard and yet this discus hovered above the ground simply free in the air. As if rooted to the spot, I remained standing only about 20 metres (66 feet) away and stared over at the flying saucer in disbelief and not understanding. I was no longer able to think anymore and could no longer take a step. I am accustomed to quite a lot and quite hard-boiled from all my travels, but what I saw there simply left me frozen. It simply could not and was not allowed to be true, because something like that simply could not exist.

I do not know how long I actually stood there and did not move. I only know that something suddenly touched my arm and I then turned around without understanding and as if in a dream. What I saw left me even more frozen, because standing beside me, were two men in diving suits. I can still remember I was wondering about this and I asked myself why these two would be walking around in the middle of the bush in diving suits.

Only then did it dawn on me and I noticed many differences. The suits were visibly light and not as cumbersome as many diving suits known to me. Nor did the silvery colour correspond to the suits known to me. The two blond men also wore no helmets but had strange looking devices of different sizes and shapes on their suits. Still rigid, I was unable to speak a word although the men, who obviously belonged to the flying saucer, did not look vicious and even laughed in a friendly manner.

Then suddenly, one of them started speaking something but I could not understand a word of it. Then the second one also made an attempt, but with the same result, I did not understand a word. Their language also appeared totally strange to me but with a melodic and sympathetic sound that relaxed me somehow and seemed to release me from my rigidness.

Both men were about equal size, their size were about the same as mine, that is 174 centimetres (5.71 feet), now took me by the arms and led me towards their flying saucer, which I passively allowed to happen. About 5 metres [16'4"] in front of the saucer, they had erected some strange-looking things, under which also somewhat strange chairs or armchairs stood, in which we sat down in, whereas I, however, was still not able to utter a sound. With a friendly smile, one of the men spoke to me again, but I still could not understand anything. His speech, however, had the effect that the rigidness that had affected me, now completely was gone and I felt very calm. Then I was suddenly able to speak again. Astounded, I inquired in Spanish about this incident that was incomprehensible to me. But now obviously, I was not being understood.

I then made an attempt, in English but with the same result. The same thing also happened with my native German language. We simply could not communicate. Then one of the men spoke to me again in his melodious and pleasant language, while grasping his belt and switching around on some device hanging on it which was surely no larger than a package of cigarettes. While speaking, his language suddenly changed and just as suddenly I heard Spanish words, then French and suddenly German. I do not know why, but I was suddenly happily excited about it, something the men must have noticed, because the German language remained, and only now did I notice that the men were speaking to me in my mother language. I can still remember clearly what they first said:

"We can now communicate through our language transformer. Be greeted and do not fear. We are here in peace and shall depart in peace." Those were the first words that I was able to understand. And I will certainly never forget their exact wording. It was so greatly impressive to me that everything was deeply imbedded in my memory, you can sincerely believe me.

After we were able to communicate, I was asked whether I was able to retain everything in my memory, if they, these two men, were to explain various things to me. I answered this question affirmatively and explained, however, that I would write everything down in short hand simultaneously, if this was allowed, because I was a world traveller who earned my living by writing reports of my experiences. This would actually be very good, I was told, but they wanted to know what shorthand was.

I indeed wondered about this question, yet I answered it correctly, for which they thanked me. So I searched out my shorthand pad and a pencil, and started to write it down word for word, everything that we talked about between us. So I can give you a true to the word copy of our conversation, which surely will set you in as much astonishment and disbelief, as myself. Yet let me tell you all, in the order as I have written it down:

I am Kohun, said one of the two men.

I am called Athar, said the other introducing himself.

My name is Horst Fenner, I explained to both of them.

Do you live here in this wild country? Athar asked.

No, I am only a tourist here, as I am from Germany.

What is a tourist? Athar asked.

A visitor was my answer.

Then Athar and I are tourists, said Kohun.

How am I to understand that? was my question.

Kohun answered: We are not from this world, which you call Earth.

And how am I supposed to further understand that? I asked astounded.

We come from the stars, answered Kohun, and we are not beings of this world.

I suppose you want to pull my leg, don't you? I asked. I actually believed that what they said was a joke.

No, we come from the star, Proxima Centauri, as you call this group of stars, was Kohun's answer. It is the closest solar system to this world - about 50 trillion (50,000,000,000,000) kilometres [5.29 light-years] away from here according to your method of calculation.

That cannot be. That is after all utopian, I opined.

(It is easier for me when I simply put the name of each speaker in front of each sentence. I will therefore write it like this:)

Kohun:

We are not joking.

Horst:

Then you must be humans from the stars?

Kohun:

That is what we are, if you want to call us that.

Horst:

I cannot believe that.

Athar:

We are not speaking an untruth.

Horst:

Do you really want me to believe that?

Kohun:

It is the truth.

Horst:

That is incredible. What are you doing here then?

Kohun:

We often come to Earth. We are following the events here and observing the human development. Unfortunately, they are very far behind in their development due to religious misleading and political intrigues. The Earth-humans could cause great havoc due to their undesirable development and struggle for power through which also star systems farther away could become affected. That is why we come to Earth and observe, in order to be able to prevent the possible worst from happening.

Horst:

That sounds indeed absolutely incredible.

Athar:

We are telling you the truth.

Horst:

If you are really telling the truth, what could the two of you actually do, if something were really to go wrong?

Kohun:

Have no reservations, we are not alone. Apart from us Centaurians, there are several other space races on Earth, only they come from far more distant systems than we do.

Horst:

It all sound so utopian to me. But what do you want to do about the development on Earth? After all, you cannot simply change everything by force. That would surely lead to a world war. And where do the other star people come from?

Kohun:

But I explained to you that we are telling you the truth. It is therefore not utopian. We also do not want to take any actions against Earth. We have no right to do that and especially not by Gewalt, which is prohibited for us to use. So you do not need to fear a war from our side. We have many friends on Earth, with whom we are in contact, and who are working in a peaceful manner for the well-being of humankind according to our directives. They spread the knowledge about our existence and our mission. You call these fellow humans contact persons. They work on our behalf and are therefore treated with hostility. They are accused of lying and of fraud, against which they unfortunately cannot defend themselves.

However, it is also unfortunately the case that amongst these good contactees elements intermix who only practice fraud and hoax which jeopardises the task. In particular, the most important of all contact persons, is exposed to the greatest hostility and his life is even threatened. He is a man of highly significant value who became educated as the prophet of the New Age. His task is the most important of all, for as a prophet to the human beings of the Earth, he must once again bring the authentic teachings of the truth anew. This is the teaching you call the teaching of the spirit. These teachings are conveyed to him from the highest of all spirit realms in connection with space races from the Lyra Constellation, the stars of the Pleiades, and the DAL universe.

But in addition to these, there are a number of other space races residing on Earth, or coming here regularly. But the greatest and most important tasks are fully carried out by the space races who come from the Pleiades, because they are the distant descendants of the ancestors of the Earth-humans. That is why the great task falls within their realm of authority. These space races have three different stations on Earth under the leadership of a commander by the name of QUETZAL, whose representative is a female being who is about 350 Earth years old. She is called SEMJASE and is the daughter of the most powerful commander of the Pleiadian space fleet. The earthly contact person of the Pleiadian race is a man of about 40 years of age who lives in a country you call Switzerland. His name is known to us as BILLY.

In total number there are six different space races stationed on the Earth and on the neighbouring stars of Venus and Mars, but where there are very few on very small stations. The number of these residents on Venus and Mars only come to about fifty, because these planets are absolutely uninhabitable and are extremely hostile to life, like all the other planetary bodies of this solar system, in which only Earth is habitable and actually carries life in material and spiritual form, as is known to you. A fact, which also ought to be confirmed by your science soon, despite lying claims by hoaxers and fraudsters to the contrary, who pretend to have had, or that they to this day still maintain, contact with us.

Horst:

That is unbelievable, is that really all true?

Athar:

We are telling the truth.

Horst:

I simply cannot believe it. It all sounds like a utopian horror.

Kohun:

Our information nevertheless corresponds to the truth.

Horst:

I suppose I have to believe it, whether I want to or not. Your flying saucer alone proves to me that you must be right.

Athar:

We call our flight devices beamships.

Horst:

May I know something about its propulsion?

Kohun:

We are not permitted to give information about such things.

Horst:

What a shame.

Athar:

It would be a great help to us, if you could offer us your assistance.

Horst:

Gladly, what can I help you with?

Athar:

We would like to entrust you with a task in connection with our existence.

Horst:

Should I write something about you?

Kohun:

That would be very useful for our task.

Horst:

I cannot do that. I am not crazy. No one would buy that story from me, and I would be declared insane. I cannot accept that.

Kohun:

As you will, then our efforts were in vain. You must leave us now.

Horst:

Wait, I did not mean it like that. Perhaps I could give it a try, if I were to remain anonymous.

Athar:

How are we to understand that?

Horst:

Simply that I do not reveal my name.

Kohun:

That does not serve the cause.

Horst:

What should I do then?

Kohun:

You would have to go public as our contact person.

Horst:

I cannot do that. I am not that crazy.

Athar:

Then our discussion is ended.

Horst:

It is indeed a real pity, but you must understand my situation.

Kohun:

If this is your final decision, then our conversation has come to an end

Horst:

I guess so, but I simply cannot do it. Could you not at least answer another question?

Kohun:

If it does not relate to our flight devices and equipment, it is alright.

Horst:

You just spoke of persons who call themselves contact persons but are not really such. Because I have once read several names that I have retained in my memory. One of them was called Adami, or something like that, another one Genovesa and yet another one Michalek. Could you tell me something about them?

Athar:

Why does that interest you, as you otherwise will only wrap yourself in silence?

Horst:

It is merely a question. On the other hand, you have convinced me that you must really come from the stars, I would like to learn and further educate myself. I simply cannot go public in order to fulfil your wish. On the one hand, no one would believe a word I say and on the other hand, I am simply not the suitable person.

Kohun:

You may well be right. It is also your right to know the truth. The names you mentioned are well known to us, but you mispronounced them: The first is called ADAMSKI, the second, Genovese, and the third, Michalek. These are not names of real contact persons, but of malicious swindlers. Neither one nor the other of them has ever had contact with us or any of the other space races.

To the best of our knowledge, they have also never even sighted one of our beamships. These three are not the only frauds of this kind. There are very many of them. If you hear at a later time such names as Zilar, Menger, Miller and Nelson or Castillo, Siracusa... then you can be sure that these are definitely the names of frauds.

Horst:

Wow, are there so many then?

Athar:

There are still many more, but they are quite few as opposed to the real contact persons. Would you not still consider to work for our task?

Horst:

It is tempting, but I really cannot do it. Perhaps later, I would first of all like to talk in-depth about these things to someone who knows of the entire matter and is well informed. Could you give me the name of someone?

Kohun:

Turn directly to the most important man of all. But you cannot take over your task only at a later time because you must make up your mind now. Either you already know what you can take responsibility for and what your duty is, or we have to do without your help. We must be strict in this regard.

Horst:

Then I have to pass, because I cannot make a decision now. Too bad. I will consider everything and perhaps at least try to publish this experience with you.

Athar:

That would be a pleasure for us and it would definitely also be useful. But you must really go now because we have other work to do. It is too bad that we have guided you here in vain. Go in peace and be not afraid.

Dear friends, I was able to write the entire conversation word for word up to this point, and in the end, everything no longer seemed so fantastic. After a few more friendly words, we said goodbye to each other and I walked for hours back to Trinidad, arriving there shortly before nightfall. I lay awake the entire night and thought about everything. I found that I had acted rather stupid because I could perhaps have learned much more from Kohun and Athar through a feigned promise.

But I was so confused yesterday through the experience that I did not even think of it. All I thought about was that I might be labelled crazy if I were to actually publicise something. I really do not know what I am supposed to think of all this or whether I am dreaming.

That is why I am writing you and eagerly await a response from you soon. Perhaps I did the right thing or perhaps the wrong thing. Please speak to my father about it and to the pastor and ask them for their opinion, and let me know their answers soon. Also ask the pastor whether the conversation I recorded should really be made public or not.

If he thinks that that should happen, then please do so. But I would then like to request, that neither my address nor your address be mentioned because I do not wish to be harassed after my return home. If you mention only your address, they would also inevitably stumble across me, which I would definitely like to avoid, which you surely can understand. So if you publicise it, then no extra tours and no hastiness. I am anxiously awaiting a response with your opinion. In about one month, I should be in LA PAZ where you can reach me at the usual address. Until then, all the best and kind regards to everyone.

Your globetrotter friend,

Horst

136. I knew nothing about all this.

Billy:

There you see, even you are not all-knowing.

Semjase:

137. That, I have also never claimed.

Billy:

Okay, I am just playing with you. Look, for your consolation, I have got a little solace offering here. You can look at it later, because it is none of my business.

Semjase:

138. Then it is not yours?

Billy:

Definitely not.

Semjase:

139. Pay my dear thanks.

Billy:

Will do, girl.

Semjase:

140. Now I have a question for you:

141. Have you been able to spend the last few days looking back at the past?

Billy:

I wanted to do it, but I did not have the time. Twice I could steal away in one afternoon and have a few hours for myself. But I did not get much out of it – the time was too short.

Semjase:

142. You have to try because it is important to all of you.

Billy:

You mean for the group?

Semjase:

143. Sure, the time has come for some of you to get to know more about the context.

Billy:

Then you could help me with that.

Semjase:

144. Sure, but you should handle the issues yourself.

145. In the meantime, you have analysed more things than you want to explain, I am sure of it.

146. You just do not want to talk about it because you do not yet know the full connections and they seem too fantastic to you.

147. You just want to keep quiet until you are absolutely sure.

Billy:

Exactly, I cannot take the responsibility for saying anything sooner.

Semjase:

148. That is very dutiful.

Billy:

You start turning the flowers into perfume. But tell me, can you say something about the current context, I mean, what is the task in everything?

Semjase:

149. Same as the other time.

Billy:

You mean that they take on certain tasks out of their own discretion and sense of duty?

Semjase:

150. Sure you do, you know that very well:

151. Through their self-acquired knowledge and that which they themselves can still attain, they integrate themselves into a duty of responsibility, so they helpfully stand by you and will be concerned about all those matters which you cannot be responsible for yourself.

152. This also applies to the material concerns of the future and to your great modesty in the form that the material concerns are dealt with by them, because you cannot keep them in order by your modesty, which was already the case before.

153. Although a very great humility of your person is necessary for the fulfilment of your and our mission, you are simply too humble, which can jeopardise you in your task if you do not help yourself in this regard and are not given loving help.

154. In many cases you cannot be concerned about your own well-being, precisely because of your modesty, so you have to be mothered in this area.

155. In self-awareness, our dear female and male friends have partially recognised this, whereby the female friends in particular have turned to the urgently needed task of doing or handling the most pressing things for you.

156. But they do it out of honest love and joy and with the certainty of their knowledge that this is necessary because you yourself cannot be master of these things.

157. But they also fulfil their task and duty because the knowledge of truth has awakened in them and they have found the path to wisdom, which is why they also give their help in thanksgiving.

158. They know well that only through communal help can you fulfil your difficult mission, and since they have recognised it in truth as truth and of the utmost importance, they have become dutiful, thus they are helpful out of their own free will.

Billy:

And – have you not helped a little?

Semjase:

159. You cannot expect such things of me.

160. Certainly, I have received many thoughts from our friends, whom I also call my personal friends, because they have become very dear to me, but I have not influenced them to do any things, because this would not have served the cause.

161. Only I helped them by telling them the truth in the finest thought-form, if they were able to grasp it.

162. So everything lies in their own grasping and recognising and also in their own decision.

Billy:

Sorry, I did not mean it like that.

Semjase:

163. Then I misunderstood you.

Billy:

It is ok. Can you at least tell me if I am right when I assume that certain connections from the distant past will bind us together again now?

Semjase:

164. You know very well that it is.

165. You know a lot of things and matters more than you want to admit to us.

166. You even know it for sure, but you still lack evidence for it, which you simply have to work out for yourself.

Billy:

I know, I am just a damned barbarian realist.

Semjase:

167. Sure, but that is a good thing, because you can always create clear cognition and not err.

Billy:

It is possible, but it is right often cursedly difficult.

Semjase:

168. I do not know any possibility of dissuading you from a goal once it has been set, so you will crown this time's search with success, even without my help, I know exactly that.

Billy:

All right, maybe you are right, but then how am I supposed to tell my dear friends everything? I cannot make a fuss about it. It is just not in me.

Semjase:

169. I am aware of this, so I could help you by taking over this task for you and explaining everything in a contact report, which should only be dealt with within the group.

Billy:

It will take a whole truckload of boulders off my back. Thank you so much.

Semjase:

170. It is my pleasure.

Billy:

Golly, girl, that really got me heated up.

Semjase:

171. It is understandable to me, but keep in mind that the group members in the closest circle have become very knowledgeable and understand many things more than those who belong to you only in loose form.

172. Give them my dearest thanks and greetings.

Billy:

Gladly.

Semjase:

173. Then we should say goodbye again for today.

Billy:

Whatever you say. Could you allow me one last question, though?

Semjase:

174. Certainly.

Billy:

Thank you. But in the past you had told me, that you would answer the question regarding Atlantis and Mu only when the time is ripe for it. However, today you have given me the answer and I cannot detect that the time is ripe for it. How can I recognise it?

Semjase:

175. That is very simple:

176. For many years now we have been keeping an eye on Otto Muck, who also has been inspired by us for certain things.

177. First he was supposed to go public informatively on a large scale with the results of his research, in order to prepare the human beings of the Earth for the full truth about the events surrounding Atlantis and Mu at that time.

178. This he has done, on one hand through a book, and on the other hand also through the newspaper article that you have shown me.

179. Thereby the ground is prepared to reveal the complete truth.

180. Today I wanted to tell you about the events surrounding Atlantis and Mu anyway, but you beat me to it with your question.

Billy:

I see, then I jumped the gun somewhat.

Semjase:

181. That is not so; but for now farewell and goodbye.

182. Take care of yourself.

Billy:

The same for you, and also greetings to Pleija and Quetzal. Goodbye.
